"Ye Gads, Ye Gods!" So began the senior year for the 1968 graduates. With each homeroom taking the name of a Greek god, the annual magazine campaign started things rolling with the seniors grossing $12,552.10. Following the election of class and homeroom officers, homecoming became the center of attraction. A combination of half-time pagentry and a victory made this homecoming a pleasant memory for members of the senior class.

During the winter months seniors bounced from football and a new year to basketball and college. Several Saturdays were spent in deep thought answering the questions of the SAT and ACT exams. The arrival of long-awaited college acceptances brought with them sighs of relief. Breaking the monotony of a semester exams and homework were weekend jaunts of skiing, skating, and tobogganing.

In the spring of the year, while the girls contemplated the upcoming festivities, the young men's fancy turned to thoughts of baseball, golf, and track. With the senior dinner dance, the prom, and their last semester tests finished, seniors thought of only one thing . . . graduation. With diploma in hand, this proud class of seniors walked from the gym for the last time as a class into a waiting world.

Underclass photographers directed by Mr. Schwenk learned the ins and outs of the photo business while taking and printing pictures for the Ellwoodian. For this purpose, they utilized two dark rooms and photographic equipment for processing. Ingenious use of a variety of cameras allowed the photographers to be right on top of the action at all times.

Maintenance of projectors, tape recorders, filmstrips, and operation of the audio-visual recorder at basketball games depended upon the competence of the Audio-Visual Club at Lincoln. With Mr. Bodensky, their sponsor, they also had control over the operation and repair of the equipment in the instructional-material center adjacent to the library.

Service clubs provided experience and

The Library Club at Lincoln functioned as a service club in assisting the librarians in their work and helping students who used the library's facilities. Parties with sponsors, Mrs. Mizik and Mr. Boyd, were held at Halloween and Christmas.

Student office assistants supported the secretaries in filing and typing. This service also provided student mail carriers who distributed attendance sheets, interview permits, and office memos to the various homerooms.

Without the professional-like work of the stage and sound crew and Mr. Williams, the sponsor, the school's communication system would be severely hampered. It was up to these boys to channel the daily flow of announcements into the sound room. These same boys managed the stage work which involved setting up mikes and stage scenery, handling of curtains, and lighting.

Ellwoodian ideas focused on Spectrum.

Is it a bird? — plane? — Batman? No, it's only the Ellwoodian caped crusader flying through the halls gathering material for the 1968 yearbook. Although not all the members had purple capes and top hats, the staff was everywhere gathering first-hand knowledge of all phases of school life, including detention hall after school, in order to give the complete spectrum of Lincoln. Being an adventurous group, members could be found on the school roof or in an old house getting unusual pictures. Candid shots were especially emphasized in the faculty and activities sections. Faculty pictures showed the teachers as the students will remember them in later years. With less formal poses and more candid shots for the extracurricular activities, emphasis was placed on participation rather than merely membership in a club.

Acting as editors, veteran Journalism II students, with the help of their cub reporters, continued to publish the latest school developments in the Echo. Publishing of this newspaper brought with it many trials and tribulations, along with valuable experience in journalism. Under the new management of Miss Richardson, students were divided into two classes, fifth and seventh periods. The six students in journalism for their second or third year acted as editors of the paper. First year students learned the fundamentals of the newspaper business and put this knowledge to use reporting school activities. On November 16, as a special project, advanced journalists went on a field trip to Pittsburgh where they toured the Pittsburgh Press, T.V. Channel 13, and the Cathedral of Learning.

Continuum exposed latent creativity.

Literary Club members spent time proofreading, thinking, and measuring articles. T. Tammara, K. Cartwright, F. Mohrbacher.

The scene was a darkened room with only a single flickering candle providing illumination. In the air was the unmistakable fragrance of incense, and in the background the exotic and wistful strains of sitar music. Poetic expression by a young man seemed ideally suited to this mood. A voice ceased. Lights turned on, and for the moment at least, members of Literary Club returned from the ethereal to the earthly.

The main purpose of this newly-formed club was the publication of a series of literary magazines composed of students' original essays, short stories, and poems. An assistant editor chosen for each publication supported editor-in-chief Chuck Hammersmith. The first of these magazines appeared shortly before Christmas vacation and was cryptically titled the Continuum. Before the year was out, the prolific contributors managed to print several more editions. As a member of a cultural club, members were treated to an interesting variety of field trips.

Chess Club tested stamina of mind.

Except for an occasional "I've trapped you there," or "queen moves to Q-4," or most rarely "checkmate," Chess Club meetings won hands down as the most quiet and orderly club meeting. In a double elimination tournament held in the cafeteria, over sixty members engaged in bitter tooth-and-nail competitions with the goal of becoming the undisputed grand-master of the school. Members quickly learned why people from the Indians and Persians to the medieval kings and knights considered the mastering of this game not only fine mental exercise, but a prerequisite to becoming a learned man. In order to be successful, one must have an orderly mind, a fine memory, and a flair for mental competition. Mr. Gatto, club sponsor, marshaled his forces into fighting trim.

Concentration engrossed the minds of players whose main goal was to "checkmate."

Energetic bowling enthusiasts made a special effort to rise early every Saturday morning to get in a few practice frames before league competition began. The fact that bowling was the only Lincoln activity which held weekly sessions, besides the only coed athletic activity, enabled Bowling Club to provide something special to relieve the usual Saturday drag. The league was divided into ten teams on which only two came out "on the top" with the trophies at the end of the year. In the Christmas tourney, trophies were awarded to both girls and boys in the scratch and handicap singles, while the doubles consisted only of male contestants. Later in the year, the club also sponsored the Spring Tournament. The sponsor, Mr. Boschini, maintained the Bowling Club's membership in the AJBC, the American Junior Bowling Congress.

Letters distinguished Varsity Club.

During half time, Varsity Club members T. Herman and T. Cortez constructed a dividing line with rope to keep spectators clear of the basketball floor.

"He's fading for the long bomb!" "Kiss it goodbye!" "It's a hole in one!" These were just some of the thoughts sprinting through the minds of the Varsity Club members. This elite group of nearly fifty senior high lettermen put aside their sports biases and worked together in an effort to become a smooth-running organization. Under the supervision of Mr. L. Butler Hennon and the leadership of president Larry Costa and his fellow officers, the Varsity Club sponsored the annual Senior-Faculty basketball game between pupils and pedagogues. As one of the last projects of the school year, spring jackets were provided for all members.

Dance Club filled social gap Friday nights.

Sponsoring the weekly Friday night dances made Dance Club one of the most active organizations in Lincoln. Each member was responsible for taking his turn working at the door, selling refreshments, and acting as disc jockeys. The weekend dances were divided between an early junior high dance and a later one for senior high. At intervals throughout the year, local bands and sometimes a nationally known group entertained along with the usual top "pop" records. Record albums and other gifts were given away as door prizes at special dances. The money received from these sources was donated to worthwhile school projects such as the Assembly Fund. Mr. Butler Hennon, activities director, gave the club special thanks for the $700 contribution this year. Through the efforts of Dance Club, students were provided with an inexpensive and stimulating means of entertainment.

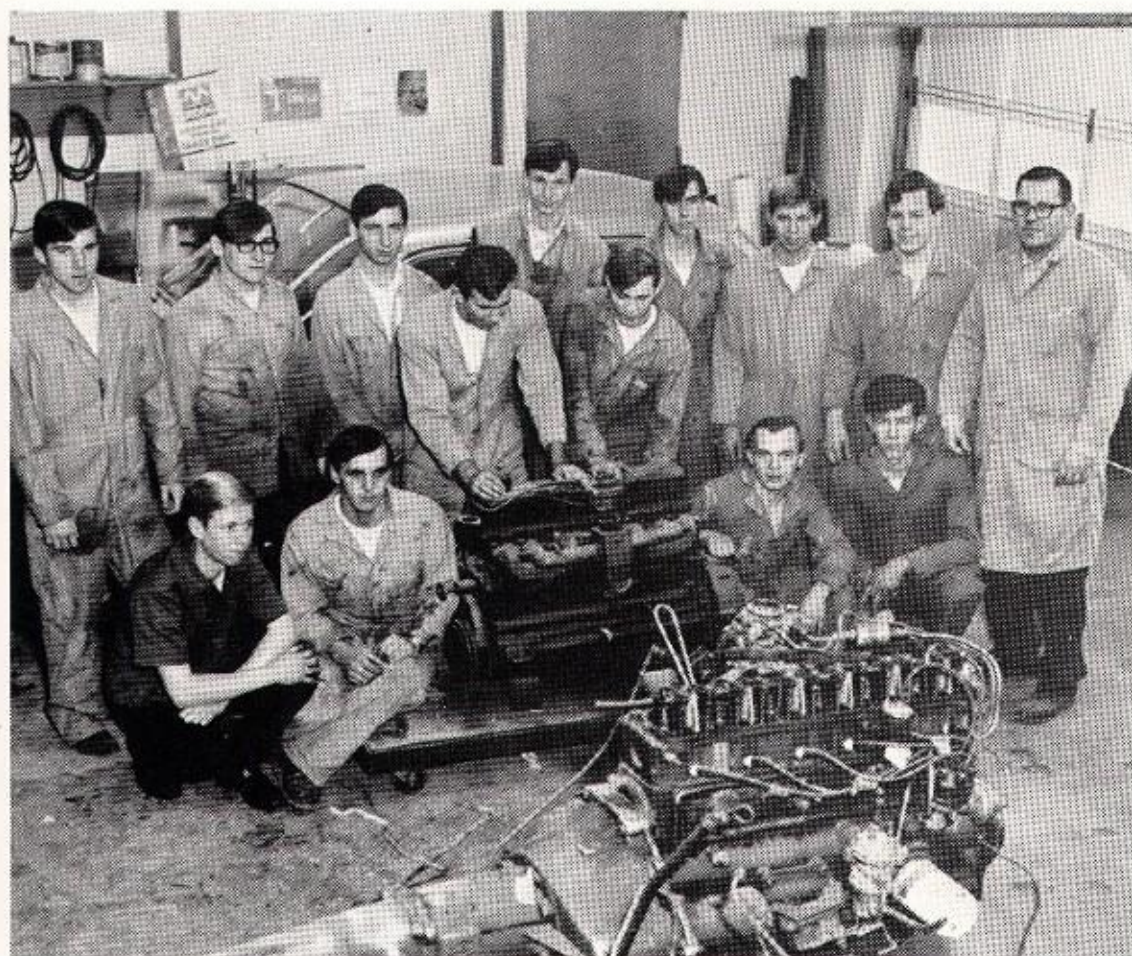

D. C. stamp was the passport for Friday night entertainment.

Grime and grease paid off in skills.

Through long hours of diligent work and study of engines, auto club members attuned their ears to that of mechanics, ears which could appreciate the roaring confidence of a well-tuned engine, and recognize the failure that creates the discordant rhythm of one out-of-tune. The cars used in the shop were purchased from local dealers, repaired, then sold back to dealers or customers. Auto shop also provided tools and labor needed to repair cars owned by club members. Late in the year, several members of the club, along with sponsor Mr. Wallace, traveled to Detroit to view the new designs and industrial techniques of the auto industry.

Conservation club befriended nature.

Cultivating an interest in natural beauty, in preservation of wildlife, and in handling firearms, Conservation Club inaugurated new activities at Lincoln. Films concerning preservation of natural resources by wildlife management were viewed as an introduction to the methods of conservation, and at a later meeting the game warden elaborated further on this topic. During the Christmas holidays, members traveled to McConnells Mills, which afforded them an extraordinary opportunity to enjoy the natural beauty of the Ellwood City Area. During the winter months, wood shop students constructed birdfeeders which members placed at various locations throughout the area. At the Rod and Gun Club members learned to shoot, as well as the maintenance mechanics of their weapons under expert instructors and supervisors.

In its third year as an organization, the Committee For Young Adults Voting Rights welcomed many new and young faces into its ranks. Under co-chairmen Veronica Catarcio and Dan Smith, a letter writing campaign was initiated. Committee members used their personalized stationery to send letters to assemblymen requesting information and aid. The Committee, with the aid of sponsor Mr. George Reese, planned to use these facts to present their case for lowering the voting age to eighteen. Later projects revolved around a half-hour program arranged by the Committee for presentation before social groups of the community. This same program was the basis for an assembly presented for the benefit of the student body.

Artists displayed creativity in painting windows and slaves.

"Where's my white shirt?" Storming down the steps in search of their missing apparel, many fathers of senior high students soon found the answer in their kitchen. There sat the newest Art Club member of the family in his shirt, now splattered with paint.

So began the year for those artistically inclined with the annual auction, where for the first time money was bid for the slaves. After the initiation, Art Club members gained insight into modern art techniques by a field trip to the Carnegie International Art Exhibit in Pittsburgh, as well as experiences and fun in painting store windows for Halloween. The sale of hurricane lamps helped members to raise money for another field trip.

Roaring cast shook the audience.

Sponsoring Junior Dramatics, Mrs. Ionta judged the potential talent of freshmen and sophomores desiring to join the club. The newly inducted members were sold as slaves at a picnic in October. On a designated school day the slaves were required to obey all orders of their masters. Final initiation was the performance of various skits and impersonations at a Friday night dance. Those surviving the embarrassment of the evening became full-fledged members of the club. In December a skit night was held in cooperation with Senior Dramatics. One of the highlights of the year was the performance in April of the three-act play, The Mouse That Roared. The profits financed the club's annual trip to the Kenley Players in Warren, Ohio.

Senior Dramatics Club opened the curtain on their 1967-1968 season with monologue tryouts by prospective members. Twenty juniors and seniors were selected to fill out the troupe at 27. After several organizational meetings, It Happens Every Summer, a farce, was selected for presentation in the spring. Casting for parts took place at auditions and those not chosen formed committees for tickets, publicity, makeup, props, and stage design. The two new sponsors, Mr. DeVinney and Mr. Galvin, took over the directorial tasks. Practices during the evenings proceeded at a furious pace for several weeks. With the capable guidance of the directors and the perseverance of the students, the play was presented for a successful one-nighter on March 9.

and traditions of France with study.

Under the leadership of first-year French teacher, Mr. Bob Galvin, "les terrible enfants" of French Club ran the gambit of social events. These festivities included bingo, charades, and group singing (in French, of course). At one meeting members were treated to a special French scavenger hunt. The highlight of the year, however, was the Mardi Gras held in late March. At this gala occasion food and merriment flowed aplenty.

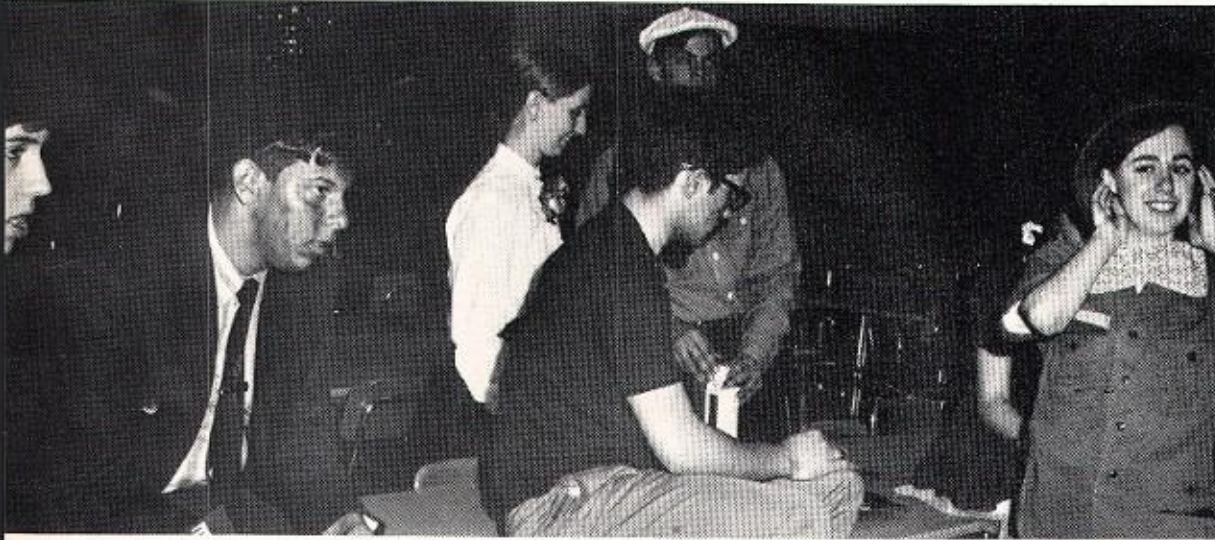

Although the gatherings were entertaining, they shed much light on French culture. Several students who had spent their summer vacations abroad gave first-hand information on modern European society. Carter Smith spoke concerning his sojourn in Spain while Kevin Cartwright and Marion Tita expounded on the land of Gaul (that is, De Gaulle).

For practice in the language, French Club sang traditional French songs.

H. DeNome tickled the keys of his accordian while Mrs. Panico and Miss Jacobs enjoyed the antics of C. Fusco and S. Esposito.

Spanish speaking ghosts and witches appeared from all parts of the city to partake of the annual Spanish Club Halloween Fiesta. Blindfolded goblins swung fruitlessly at the bright pinata, and their efforts were eventually rewarded by a shower of candy, money, and toys. At a mid-winter meeting students were given first-hand information on life in Spain. Carter Smith spoke concerning his summer sojourn in Gandia, Spain, and co-sponsor Miss Jacobs on her year of study at the University of Madrid. Highlighting spring activities was the Mardi Gras, at which the wildly costumed students joined in songs and dances. Participation in club meetings greatly bolstered student abilities in pronunciation and comprehension of the spoken language.

Latin Club said, "Do as the Romans do."

Even the Romans had their own tailors! C. Stein, B. Miloser, J. Jeckavitch, Mrs. Aley.

Is Latin really dead? Latin Club members kept this classical language alive through skits, song, and games at their monthly meetings. New members were initiated with the "Apple Seed Ceremony" performed by Jeff Jeckavitch, high priest.

At the Thanksgiving meeting, Vistulus, a cloth calf full of popcorn balls and candy suspended from a rope, was the object of many futile blows by exasperated participants. Depicting a typical Roman feast of 2000 years ago, the annual banquet was the climax of the year's activities in April. Music, dancing girls, and mock conflicts provided the entertainment for the students as they feasted and reclined on mats.

Later in the year, a picnic was held for the members during the Spring Festival, where Roman games were enjoyed.

Y-Teen Christmas card display attracted teachers. C. Carofino, Miss Jacobs

With a week's training at the Y-Teen convention held at Bethany College, this service club's officers were ready to present members an eventful year. Their first project was a car wash which was hindered a bit by an unscheduled rain-storm. The annual candle light ceremony was held in October when new members were inducted into the club. In December, the girls busied themselves preparing the decorations for the record hop, "Crystals and Ice," which 225 couples attended. This dance was financed not only by the car wash but by a Christmas Card Sale. Joy was brought into the lives of the people at the Old Folks Home when the girls spent an evening with them in February. The club members learned a little more of the world through movies and talks on Hawaii and Spain. Activities in the spring were centered around the semi-formal, which was held in the cafeteria on April 19.

Tri-Hi-Y grew through fellowship.

Tri-Hi-Y member Rickie Blinn handled the confusion of repossessing coats after basketball games.

After the lighting of the candles, members of the Tri-Hi-Y went into a formation of a cross while they repeated the club oath. At this initiation meeting, Miss Margaret Cronin, who took the place of Mrs. Jean Miles, was introduced as the new sponsor. Along with the officers, Miss Cronin presented many new projects and activities. The joint Halloween party with Hi-Y was the outcome of their work. "Trick or treat" by the members provided much-needed funds for the coffers of U.N.I.C.E.F. Christmas was not only the season for joy, but one of service as the girls spent an evening at the Old People's Home where they sang carols and brought gifts of cookies and punch. At the regular meetings, there was an interesting variety of speakers from John Powers to an airline hostess. As a final project in the spring, Tri-Hi-Y, representing the country of Ceylon, sent delegates to a mock United Nations Assembly in Harrisburg.

teaching experience.

Santa Claus visited a party given for Special Education Classes sponsored by F.T.A.

"Each one teach one." Members of the Future Teachers of America planned higher education to achieve this goal. To gain insight into the profession, educators were invited to speak. Mrs. Panico discussed personal rewards of teaching and Dr. Clarence M. Long, Superintendent of Schools, spoke on different areas of teaching. Observing classes and tutoring junior high students gave members firsthand ideas of a teacher's task. A Christmas party complete with the ho, ho, hoing of Santa Claus brightened the holidays for Hartman's ungraded classes. During National Education Month teachers were guests at a tea sponsored by F.T.A. Students who had traveled abroad the previous summer informally shared their experiences with the club. As a service to the school, F.T.A. members were responsible for pen, pencil and tablet machines placed in the halls.

Hi-Y Club served its district with Christian ideals.

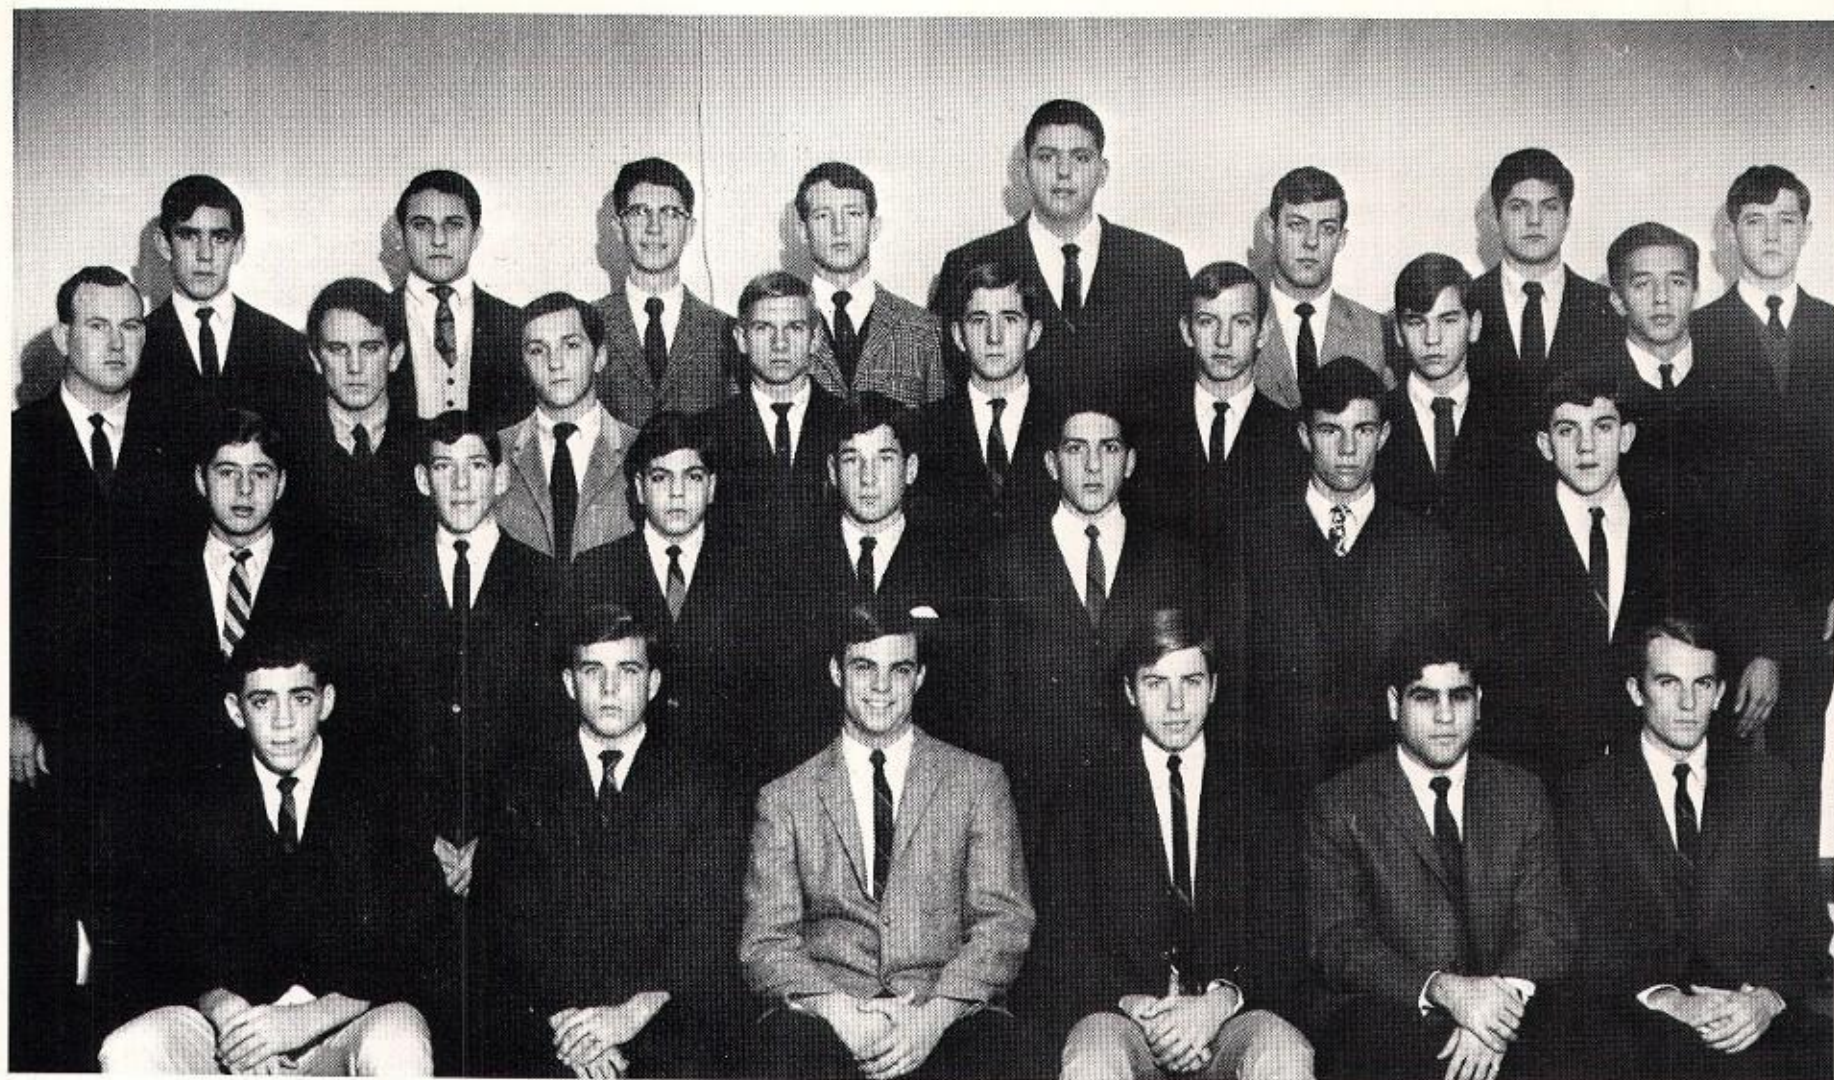

Nationally known in connection with the Y.M.C.A., Hi-Y began its service activities by selling refreshments, together with Key Club, at all the home football games. This service continued throughout the basketball season and yielded profits to finance other activities which included the annual Hi-Y Model Legislature and a sports spectacular in the spring. The Model Legislature at Harrisburg attracted members from numerous areas of Pennsylvania. They gained experience in the functioning of government by taking over the State Legislature. At the sports spectacular in Butler they competed with other area high schools in sporting events including basketball, swimming, and bowling. Throughout the school year the Hi-Y Club served both the school and community and helped build character in its members.

Understanding through involvement.

Sponsored in cooperation with school officials and the local Kiwanis Club, the Key Club was a service organization for the school and community. Their activities began with the first week of school, as they operated three refreshment stands at all the home football games. Nine weeks later, they helped to lift school spirit to new heights with their "Beat Neca" bonfire. Serving as ushers for choral concerts and disposing of Christmas trees were some holiday projects. Also, during home basketball games, six of the members held ropes to keep spectators from the playing surface. The Key Club theme of "Understanding Through Involvement" was carried out by donations to the "Youth Serves Youth" program and other community projects.

Sr. Council voiced students' opinions.

Acting as a representative body, Senior High Student Council attempted to develop the most worthwhile traits of the students, and promote a more congenial understanding between the student body and the faculty. Meeting every other week, the Executive Committee acted as a sounding board for the needs, complaints, and suggestions of the students.

As in years past, Student Council sponsored a Christmas project, with this year's theme being "Help Give a Needy Orphan a Merry Christmas." The Cafeteria Committee submitted a report to the administration which evaluated the functioning of the cafeteria, and made several suggestions for improvements. Conducting a poll among the student body, the Cultural Committee found that an overwhelming majority were in favor of supporting an exchange student next year.

Glenna Biggins displayed pride in her school with the purchase of a license plate from Tom Wolf.

Jr. Council prepared young leaders.

Delighting in a taste of student government were the young rulers in Junior High Student Council. One member elected from each junior high homeroom gathered to plan the functions and good-will drives and air the complaints for their fellow students. As a Christmas project they gathered money for CARE, which was sent to South Vietnam relief and many other countries throughout Asia and South America. In addition to foreign aid they helped local children in need. These little legislators also sold ice cream in the cafeteria, and participated in Youth Appreciation Week and Brotherhood Week. In order to heighten student enthusiasm in the junior high athletic teams, they conducted pep rallies and sold articles like Ellwood City Wolverine penants. These and numerous other activities made a busy and fulfilling year.

Service was the by-word of the National Honor Society. Demonstrating this characteristic, members of N.H.S. tutored students in subjects ranging from physics to general business and maintained a mobile bookstore within the building for student and teacher use. As a service to the community, senior members ran a refreshment booth during the Diamond Jubilee festivities and sold candied apples and snow cones at football games. In late February new members were chosen by teachers' vote and inducted into the club. These students were inducted just in time to aid the fourteen members in hosting the Lawrence County Convention of N.H.S. students.

Pageantry and defeat of Ambridge

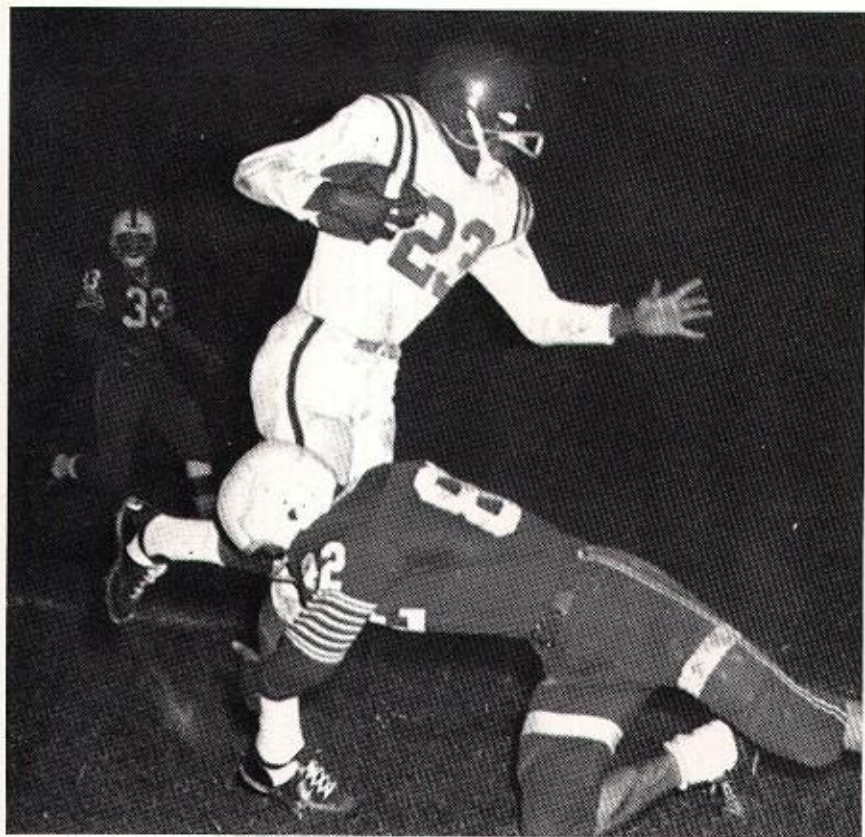

Queen Elaine LaCava showed varied emotions from time of announcement with escort Bill Milchak, through the crowning by Patti Laszlo, to the beginning of her reign.

Some four thousand spectators and nine senior girls with their escorts waited quietly as the announcer opened an envelope containing the name of one of those nine. After a pause, he began: "The 1967 homecoming queen is . . . Miss . . . Elaine LaCava." With this sentence, the reigning queen Patti Laszlo crowned her successor, and one surprised girl became the center of attention. Concluding this twelfth annual homecoming was the Wolverines' 48-7 trouncing of Ambridge.

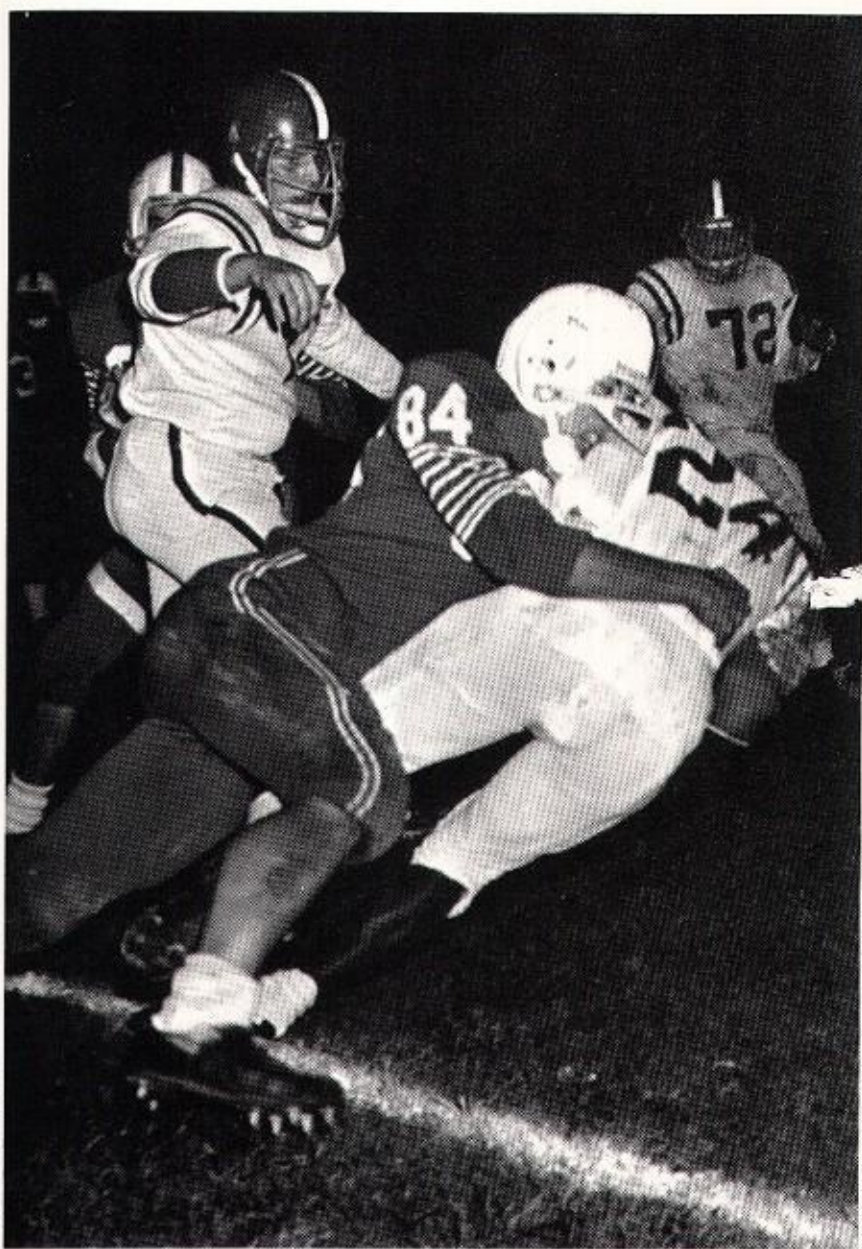

Following his handoff, Quarterback Joe DeLisio watched Mike DeOtto plunge over for one of the seven touchdowns against Ambridge.

Bud Worrell, who led the team in interceptions, showed perfect tackling on a Braddock back.

A powerful offense complements

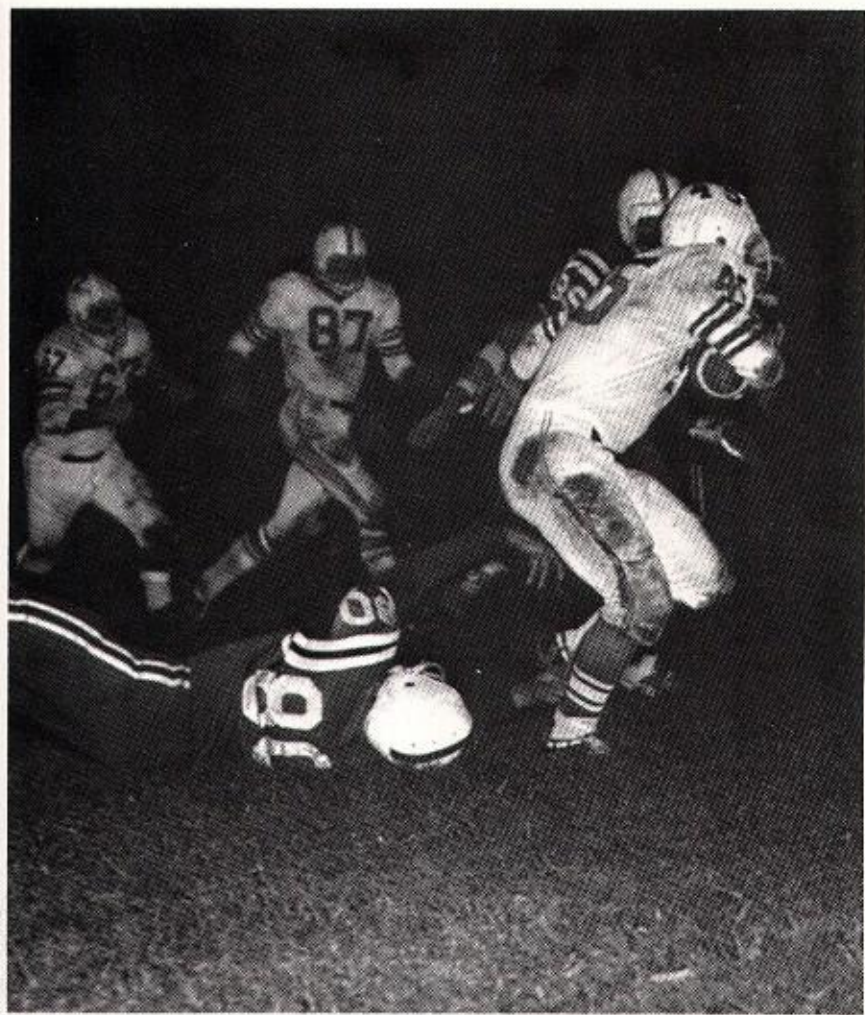

AA opponent, Ellwood smothered Ambridge 48-7 before a huge homecoming crowd. With Joe DeLisio completing 13 of 20 passes for three touchdowns and 236 yards and Mark Williams rushing for over 100 yards, the Wolverines remained with only six other teams for the Class AA Championship. Ellwood's hopes for this title were dashed to pieces, though, as they were whitewashed by Sharon 27-0. Taking an early 7-0 lead in the first half of the Beaver Falls tilt, the Wolverines showed their tremendous offense. However, following a pass interception returned for a touchdown by the Tigers, they fell apart in the second half and lost 21-7. Trying to play the role of spoiler, Ellwood next traveled to New Castle to play the Red Hurricanes, one of only two teams left in the race for the Class AA Championship. With spirit running high, the inspired Wolverines gave them quite a scare as they dominated play and held a 7-6 halftime edge. This domination continued in the second half, but New Castle, using numerous breaks to the best of their advantage, came back to win 20-13. Thus ended an exciting season for Coach Don Costa and his 1967 Wolverines in their conquest of establishing a winning tradition at Lincoln High.

An important part in any victory was student enthusiasm.

In posting their first winning season in three years, the 1967 Wolverines compiled an impressive 5-4-1 record. Also, for the first time in that many years, Ellwood won their first game by trouncing Braddock 28-13, behind a strong team effort. In their second game, the Wolverine defense held New Brighton and All-State Star Ron "Po" James to a hard earned 13-13 tie. In this game, they dominated every phase of the game except the score. Quarterback Joe DeLisio suffered a badly sprained ankle in Ellwood's first Class AA game, but Sam Botte calmly entered the game and threw two touchdown passes to All-State end Tom Mondell enroute to a 20-7 victory over Hopewell. Handing Aliquippa a safety early in their next game, Ellwood came back strong for a 14-2 victory, with Captain Nick Lamenza rushing for 130 yards and the defense holding the Quips to only 16 yards rushing. Again holding their opponent to little rushing yardage, the Wolverines completely outclassed Monaca 40-0 to remain unbeaten and once tied. Ellwood appeared to be ready for their fifth win until Rochester stepped in the way and handed the Wolverines a 15-14 loss in a non-league fray. Showing their vengeance on the third Class

Hope for future football success at Lincoln High was strongly supported by the junior high as they posted a respectable 3-2 record. Although the Little Wolverines lost their first game to George Washington due to a fumble on their own five yard line, Bob Morabito and Joe Lamenza led the way in the next game as Ellwood defeated Sharon 13-6. Failing on two extra point attempts spelled defeat for the Little Wolverines at Butler as they lost a second game 13-12. In that game, Morabito ran sixty-two yards for the first touchdown and quarterback Chuck Loboizzo ran eleven yards for the second. Ellwood next evened their record as they squeaked past Ben Franklin 7-6. Lamenza's fifteen yard run accounted for the lone touchdown, and fullback Denny Zona added the important extra point for the margin of victory. A 13-7 win over Farrell climaxed the season as Morabito took a short pass from Loboizzo into the end zone in the final seconds to erase a 7-6 Farrell lead. He also scored the first touchdown on a seven yard jaunt. This season brought head coach George Jinar's three year won-lost record to 11-3-1, a very impressive statistic for Ellwood football.

Larry Costa showed the skill, strength, and timing needed for throwing the discus.

Although characterized by a great competitive spirit, the 1967 Lincoln track team recorded a frustrating 1-9 slate. Coach Duane Kirklin's charges, in dropping their first two meets by small margins, provided stern tests for Rochester and New Brighton. However, the Wolverines proved no match for the stiff competition offered by Beaver, New Castle, and other MAC schools. The final meet at the Ewing Park Oval was the scene of Ellwood's first victory in three years as they conquered the Northwestern squad.

Individual efforts highlighted the year. Versatile Dennis McCullough set a new school record with his 40'-10" triple jump, as did John McElwain's 10:35 in the two-mile, and Jay Wiley's 2:04.3 half-mile.

Brightening the outlook for this year's team was the performance of endurance runners Bud Worrell and Randy Woods, along with sprinters Steve Haklo and Elisha Shakespeare. With this nucleus, plus a promising corps of underclassmen, the squad optimistically awaited the 1968 season.

Golfers gained section respectability.

Led by the professional-type play of John Ebersberger, and the dependable golf of Ron Maietta and Gary Rutter, the Lincoln High golf team managed a commendable 4-5 record and fourth place in their tough W.P.I.A.L. section. This, in fact, was the first year that the golf team has managed more than two section wins since it was reinstated as a competitive sport in 1964. Coach Carl Mantz's charges also managed to break the low team medal of 392.

The 9-hole exhibition season saw Ellwood take two straight from Beaver and New Wilmington, but drop a close one in a return match with the Beaver team. The competition picked up considerably as Ellwood dropped two before the capable hands of the Neshannock and New Castle teams, but the golf spirits rose as the Ellwood five downed Farrell by a lopsided 15-1 score. New Castle was again too much for Ellwood as they were trounced $\frac{1}{2}$ -15 $\frac{1}{2}$, but Ellwood came back strong with three victories in the remaining four sectional matches against Sharon, Shenango, and Farrell.

Junior John Ebersberger, who held the team's low average of 79.3, qualified in the state tournament held at Penn State. John was one of the top ten golfers in the W.P.I.A.L. and statewide was in the top twenty-five.

Wolverine nine again finished strong

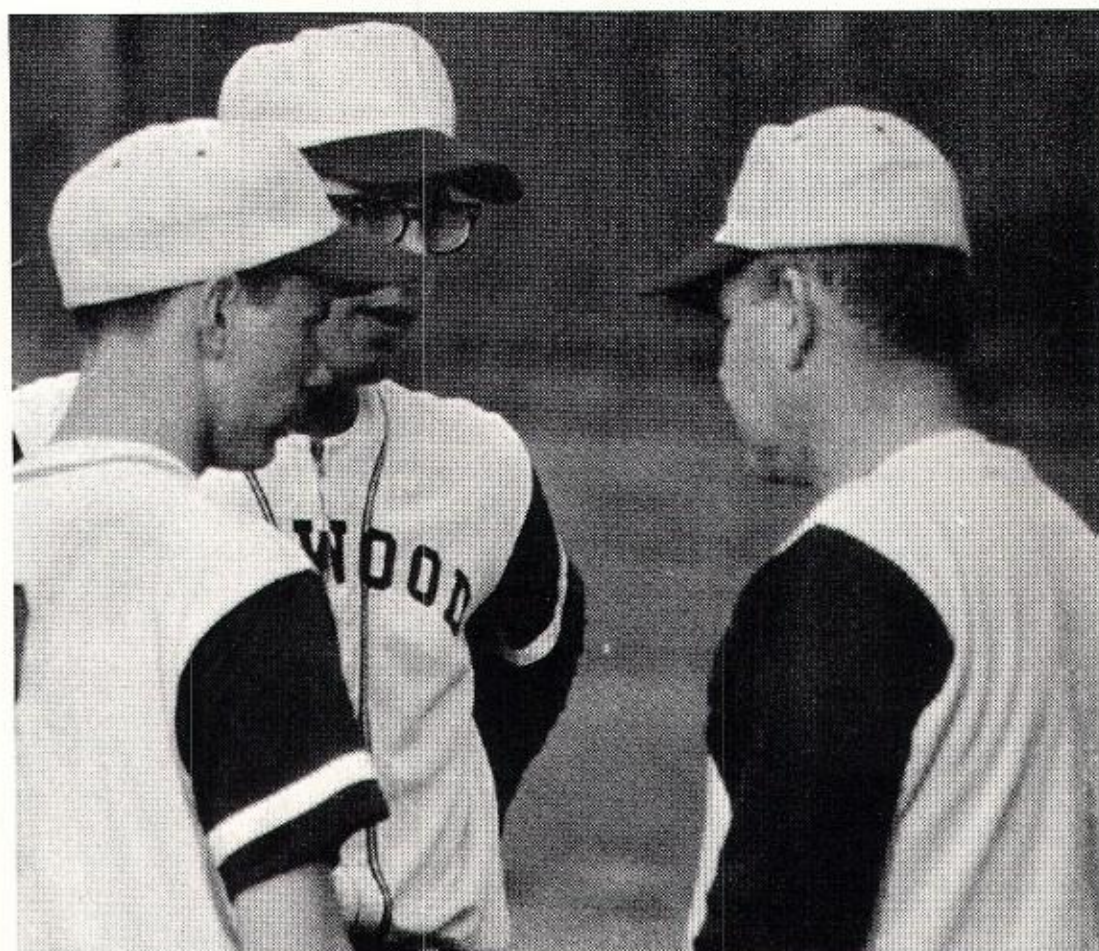

Although sporting a respectable 14-6 record, the 1967 Wolverine baseball team proved disappointing as, for the first time in three years, they failed to capture the Section VI title. The Ellwood nine placed third in section competition with an 8-4 mark, while defeating six of eight exhibition foes. The Wolverines' opening league contest foreshadowed the entire season as New Castle's Jim Massave fired a perfect game to whip Ellwood 2-0. Shaken, the team proceeded to drop consecutive section encounters to Shenango and Union.

Down, but not out, Ellwood bounced back behind Mark Williams' one-hit shutout to conquer Wilmington 9-0. In sub-freezing temperatures the Wolverines and Rich Bartolomeo bested Laurel 3-1. Backing up Jerry Bukac's fine mound performance with a barrage of hits, Ellwood pounded Mohawk 8-2 to even their section mark at 3-3. Once more, however, the New Castle Red Hurricanes thwarted Ellwood's title hopes with a 2-1 win at Sanders Field. Five succeeding wins proved "too little, too late" as the defending champs relinquished their crown to the Canes.

With Ray Smith, Ellwood's lone representative on the All-Section team, Dave Blazin, Don Wick, Jerry Bukac, Mark Williams, plus a host of underclassmen returning, the Wolverines entered the 1968 Campaign with high hopes of regaining their Section VI crown.

After completing a double play, shortstop Ray Smith sidesteps a Riverside baserunner.

Hustle and desire did not compensate with the eventual section champs, Farrell outbrawled Ellwood 66-49. With Dashield sitting out the first game of a two-week suspension and with Junior Varsity Coach Frank Aloï subbing for ill Coach Hennon, Ellwood faced the dubious task of playing defending state champion Ambridge. With junior Vic Sharek putting forth an incredible shooting performance, the Wolverines led 32-29 at the half. But All-American Dennis Wuycik took control at that point and sparked the Bridgers to an exciting 67-57 win. Coach Hennon returned to the bench and Milroy Stevenson clicked for 26 points as Ellwood recorded their initial section triumph 77-61 over Butler. Stevenson once again sparked the squad with 16 points and a matching number of rebounds, but Ellwood came out on the short end of a 62-59 verdict against Sharon. In concluding the first half, New Castle whipped the Wolverines in New Castle 79-59.

The second half proved a carbon copy of the first half as hustle couldn't compensate for a lack of experience and resulted in many close defeats. Stevenson's 30 points at Sharon in a 71-62 loss was the finest individual effort. A 75-52 win over Butler highlighted the action, but a 51-49 last minute loss to New Castle in the last game foreshadowed the bright future.

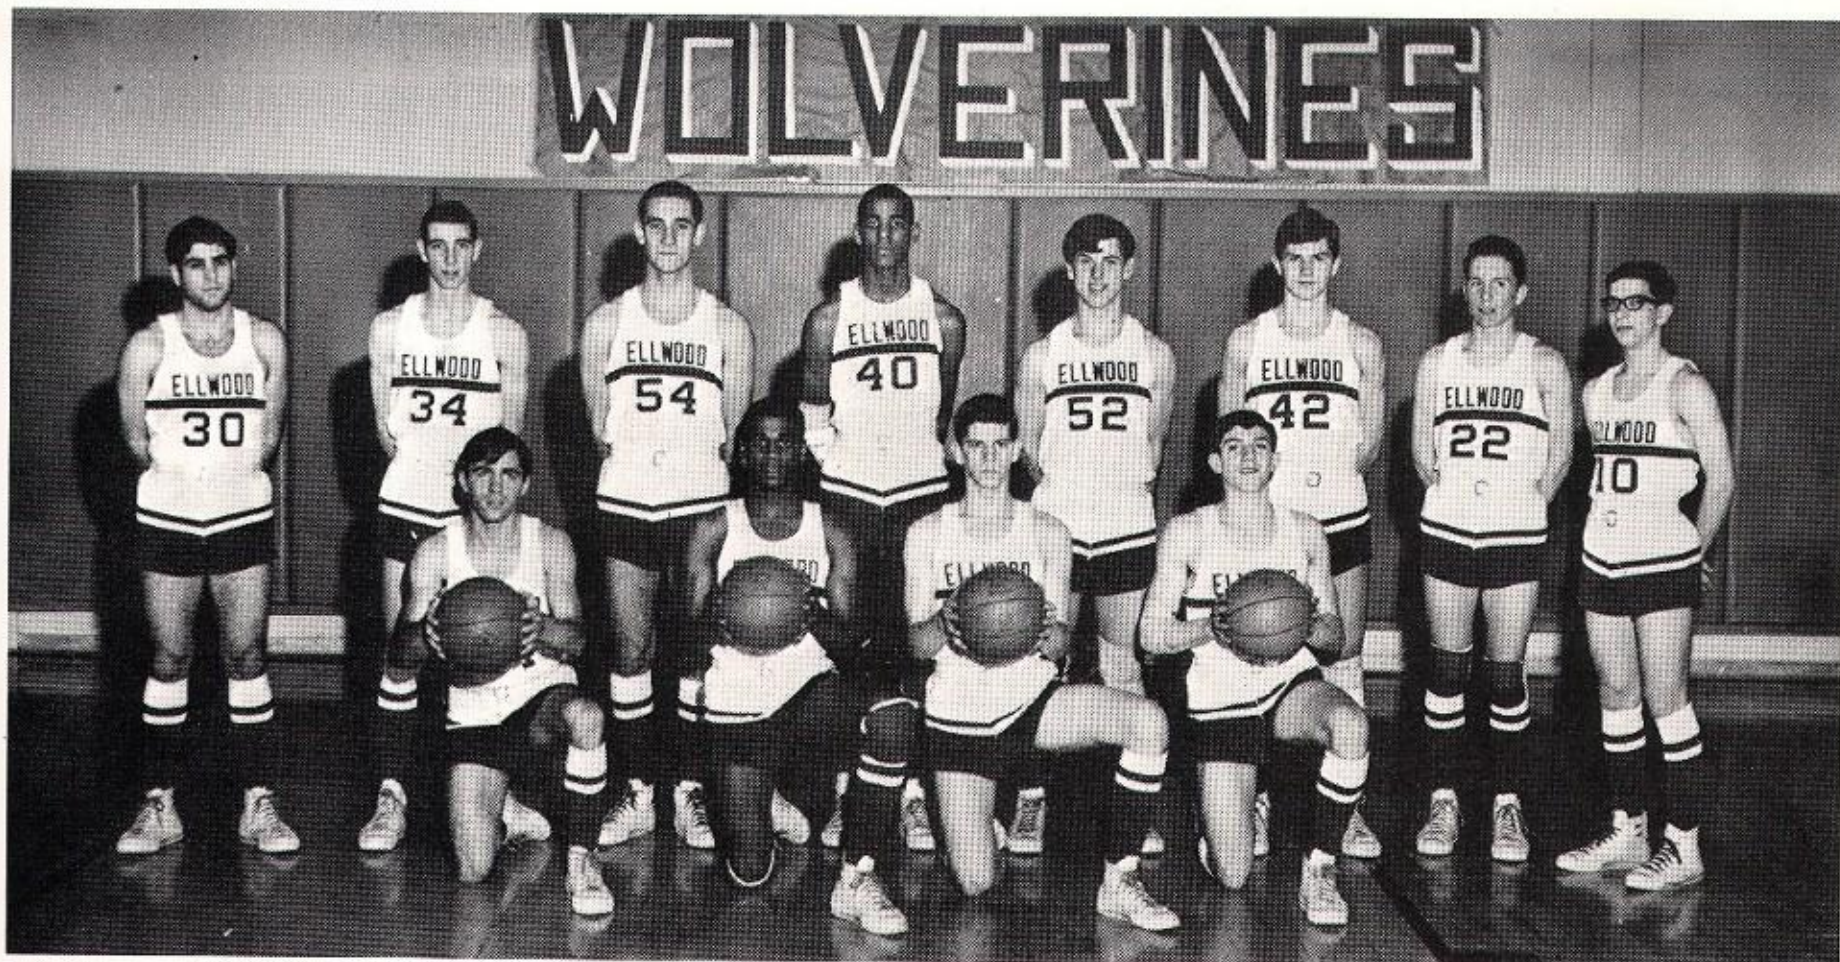

Calm and quick-thinking Nick Genova directed the Wolverine offensive attack.

Well above the rim, jumping-jack Milroy Stevenson pulled down this rebound at Sharon.

The 1967-68 basketball season at Lincoln can be summarized as a year of rebuilding in anticipation of future Section III success. Coach Hennon virtually overlooked the squad's seniors in an effort to provide underclassmen with valuable experience.

The exhibition season, after four initial losses, provided the season's only bright spots. At Coraopolis Jim Dashield tossed in 37 points, breaking the school record held by Bill Donnelly, as Ellwood pounded Cory 107-72. The 107 markers also set a new team record. Gaining momentum, Ellwood recorded their second victory at Erie Tech, 87-72. Entering Ellwood's first annual Holly Tournament as decided underdogs, the Wolverines emerged as champions following two thrilling victories over Rochester and Youngstown South.

Four consecutive hard-fought losses marked the opening of Section III competition. At home against Aliquippa, Ellwood outplayed the Quips but came up short 71-58. Dashield's 23 points and Gene DeSanzo's 16 led the Wolverines at Beaver Falls, but a second-half Tiger rally cut down the Lincoln squad 68-60. In a rugged clash

Bill Gottuso, who had the highest single game total with 29 points against Beaver, was third with 147 points despite missing five games due to illness. These three were bolstered by the dependable play of Scott Schuster, Rich Lawson, Mike Chiaro, and Dave Tammaro.

Characterized as a strong, hustling, and fine defensive team, the junior high cagers of Coach Bill Spellman posted a 14-4 overall record and 7-3 in Section 19. The Little Wolverines opened their season by winning six of seven exhibition tilts with the only loss coming at George Washington. In three of these, Dom D'Amico had a pair of twenty-two point performances and Jim Shingleton a nineteen point outburst. In the following ten Section 19 games, Ellwood lost only to a taller, more aggressive Aliquippa team and to Beaver. Victories by such margins as sixteen, twenty-two, twenty-three, and thirty-three points showed the fine potential of this team. Two eighteen point outputs by Joe Lamenza highlighted an otherwise well-balanced section attack. The climax of the entire season came at Beaver Falls as the Little Wolverines fought from behind to win by a single point. A lay-up by Chuck Lobozzo at the buzzer produced the margin of victory.

Leading the team in scoring were Dom D'Amico with 223 points and a 13.1 average and Jim Shingleton with 182 points and a 10.1 average. Other top scorers included Joe Lamenza with 154 points and a 9.1 average and Ron Atkinson with 145 and a 9.1 average, along with Chuck Lobozzo, Felix Tavern, and John Huffman. D'Amico and Lamenza were the leaders in the rebounding department, with aid from Shingleton and Tom Newton.

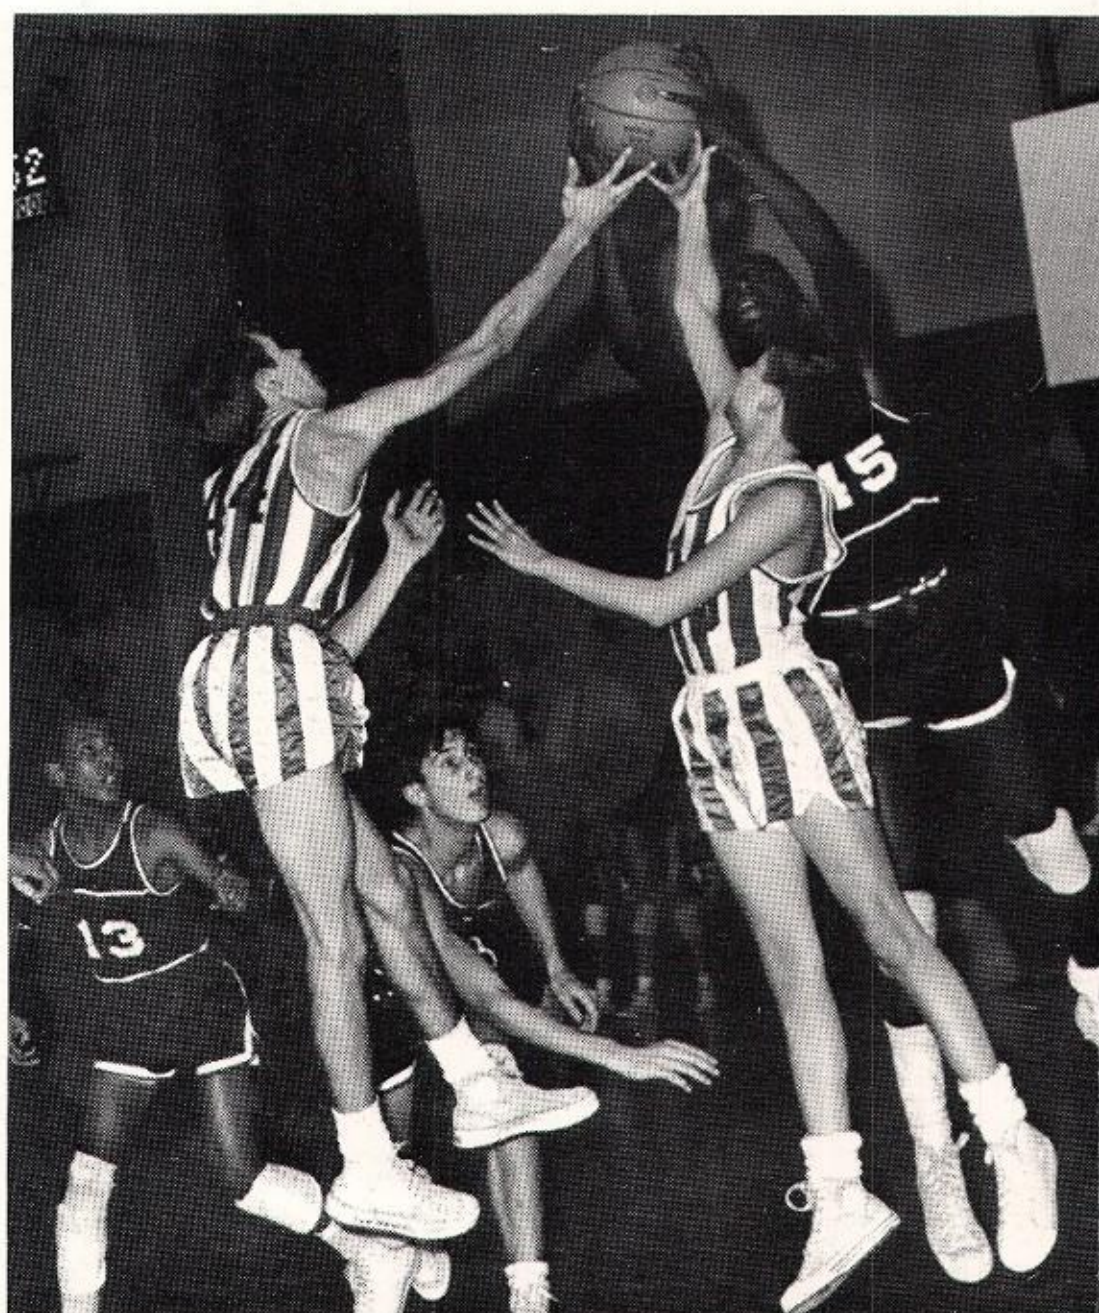

Using his strength under the Seneca Valley basket, Joe Lamenza struggled for this rebound as Dom D'Amico looked on.

All alone, Felix Tavern lay in two after a steal against Baden.

With a distinct height advantage, this Aliquippa rebounder snatched the ball from the outstretched arms of Tom Newton and Joe Ionta.

Milroy Stevenson showed the enthusiasm produced at the "Beat Sharon" pep rally.

"We've got the coach, team, pep, steam . . ." Cheerleaders worked hard at new and varied routines to enliven pep rallies and instill spirit in the student body. The introduction of the team members triggered the rallies as they came charging through the victory hoop. In addition, the varsity cheerleaders sponsored buses to every away game and sold mums at homecoming. New this year was a seventh grade cheering squad, which led their class to ardent participation in high school activities. On April 27, as an end to an energetic year, junior varsity cheerleaders attended a cheering clinic at Slippery Rock.

Junior Mixed, Senior Mixed, and Senior Girls Choirs brought Christmas cheer to many with their performances during the annual Christmas concert. The blending of these young voices in the traditional carols, such as "O Come All Ye Faithful," gave youthful reverence to the holiday season. The songs "Silver Bells" and "White Christmas" featured young dancers which added a jovial atmosphere to the concert.

Traditionally the junior high performs with the senior high at the annual spring concert; however, a separate junior high concert this year permitted the junior chorus to perform a more varied program. Classical and semiclassical songs and Broadway hits were performed not only by the entire chorus, but also by solos, duets, and groups.

Supporting the choirs were accompanists S. King, R. Goehring and S. Brown.

Distinguished by their red blazers and black crossies, the twenty-six members of Choral Capers made numerous appearances, especially during the Christmas holidays. Comprised of the best voices from Concert Choir, the chorus brought Christmas joy to the sick with its annual visit to the Mary Evans and Ellwood General Hospitals. The Ray Charles' arrangement of "Jingle Bells" highlighted the Capers' performance at the Christmas Concert. In the Spring Choral Festival, Capers performed a new calypso number, "Lucky Little Cricket," to the beat of claves.

With the graduation of more than half the choir, the seventeen experienced Concert Choir members readily accepted the many youthful voices of the new members. Opening the year with summer rehearsals, members soon realized the task which lay ahead of them.

The beginning of school brought with it invitations to perform for various local organizations, especially during the Christmas holidays. The choir also made an out-of-town appearance at the Cathedral in New Castle to perform for the Brotherhood of Churches program in February.

As in the past, highlighting the year were the two annual concerts. New numbers such as "Christmas Is" and "Looks Like Spring Is Here" were especially popular with the audience.

Mr. Gehm elicited a professional performance from Concert Choir at the Camp Allegheny dedication service.

With eyes intent upon the director, Concert Choir presented a religious program at the Cathedral.

Lively routines pleased spectators.

Band exercises at athletic events would seem incomplete indeed without the twirling and whirling of the majorettes. These eight hardworking girls, directed by Mrs. Sally Saunders, devoted much time to learning new march routines well to add color and variety not only to halftime entertainment, but also to community parades, including the anniversary parade during the summer. The fire-twirling exhibitions of head majorette Pam Zona were often featured. A trip to Penn State to appear with the senior high band in the High School Band Day was recognition for their work and determination.

Precision drills highlighted halftime performances of the 1967-68 year for the Lincoln High Blue Band. Summer rehearsals prepared the band for their halftime performances in the autumn. Ending these practice sessions was the September Band Festival.

The band not only performed at halftime for the Wolverine football games, but also participated with forty-nine other marching bands at the Penn State University Band Day during halftime of the U.C.L.A.-Penn State game in October. Performance at the New Castle Veteran's Day Parade earned another honor for the Blue Band, for it was awarded the trophy for the "Best Band." first year.

Two bands are better than one. By the formation of the 105-member Junior High Band the reputation of Lincoln's music department was expanded. Under the supervision of Mr. Fred Perino and drum major Van Barletta, the Junior High Band became a coordinated marching unit rivaling the Blue Band. The band's performances at the junior high football games and the Monaca varsity game helped add an incentive for victory. Besides its halftime performances, the band participated in all community parades. It also accompanied the Blue Band to the Veteran's Day parade. The presentation of the band concerts in February and May concluded its first, but far from its last, promising year.

Lawrence County

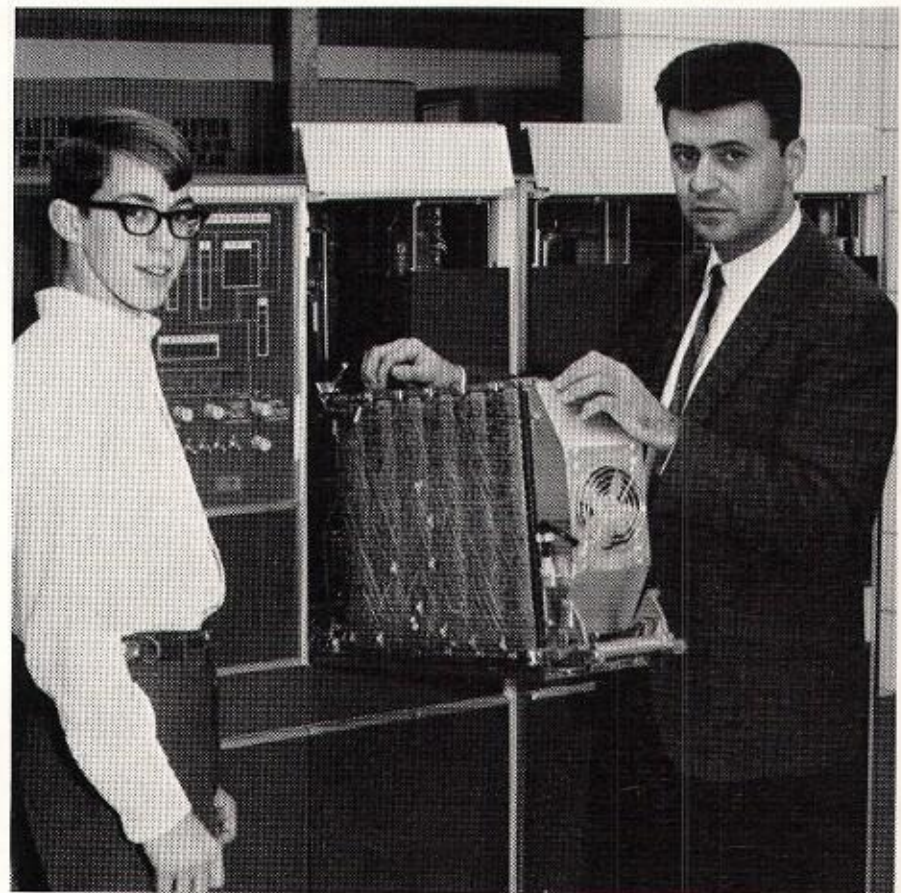

The Lawrence County Vocational Technical School gave new dimensions to student education when it opened in the fall, 1967. Despite the limited enrollment, students found a bright atmosphere and an industrious spirit in the new building.

While vocational courses such as data processing, carpentry, drafting, and cosmetology were stressed, academic subjects were certainly not neglected. Vocational courses and academic subjects needed for graduation were alternated weekly, so that all required subjects could be completed.

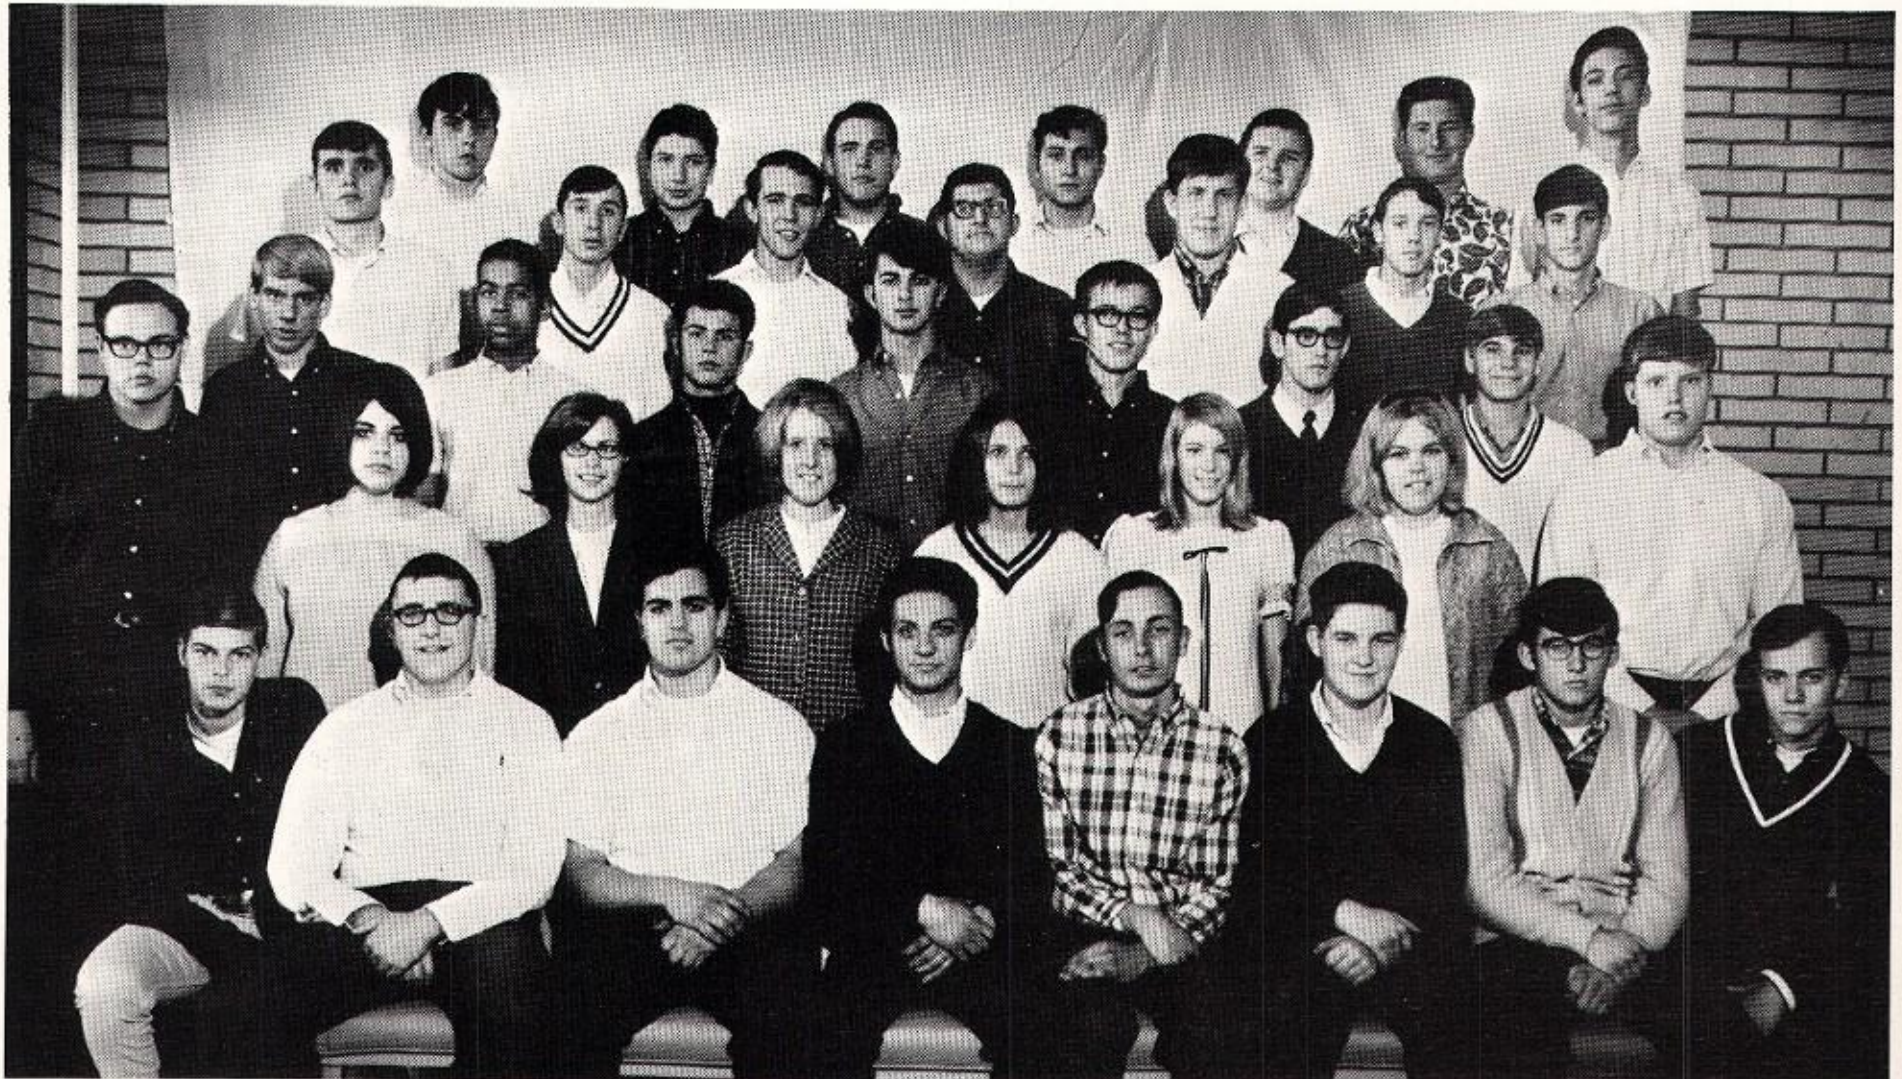

Senior high students from schools throughout Lawrence County were eligible to attend Vo-Tech, but because of limited space available, only 900 students were able to enroll during the 1967-1968 term. It is hoped that more space will become available for next year.

With this added program available, many students from Lincoln obtained a background in the various fields of their choice which will be useful in their future professions.

Elections of officers and prom co-chairmen were the first actions of the new Junior Class. Assisted by Miss Bobin, class sponsor, the new officers helped organize the candy sale, utilizing the unique theme of The Dirty Dozen. In the kickoff assembly, these terrible twelve appeared in a humorous sketch which directed a great amount of excitement toward the sale. Following the display of energetic salesmanship by the juniors, prom committees were selected under the direction of prom co-chairmen Cindy Pisani and Angelo John. After much deliberation, the theme Grecian Paradise was chosen, and juniors envisioned a classical splendor at the May spectacle. Modeling the decor upon classical lines, couples were ushered into a solemn courtyard encircled by large Doric columns. In the special ring changing ceremony at the end of the year, junior president Mike DeOtto echoed the juniors' confidence in their ability to fill the vacuum created by the departing Senior Class of 1968.

Being sixteen meant importance and involvement. Sixteen-year-olds were recognized as mature individuals by other people. This sudden realization of self-importance caused them to be more confident, and at times more egotistical. Occasional arrogance caused quite a bit of anxiety for parents and teachers.

Being sixteen meant casting aside a little brother or sister in preference for teenage friends. The most prominent influences in life were the need to be accepted by peers and the desire to be important to somebody special. Sixteen looked for stronger, more mature relationships with all people, but particularly with members of the opposite sex. Dates, parties, dances, and any other means of meeting and mixing were very popular at this age. Cars were essential for existence, and sixteen's immediate future depended on the answer to the question, "May I have the car Saturday night?" The car was only one of many opportunities that opened up new experiences. Most of all, sixteen was awakening.

These are the SOPHOMORES

Being fifteen meant being one year younger than sixteen. This could have been a tragic state of circumstances depending on one's outlook. Thoughts seemed to revolve around one obsession—getting a driver's license. In fact, anxieties of all types abounded at this age. Complexion problems, dating, and acceptance by peers ranked as the most prominent worries.

Being fifteen meant the prestige and privileges of senior high school. The right to attend senior high pep-rallies and dances and to eat 6th period became a reality. Being fifteen was being a sophomore and knowing you were a part of something special. Sophomores proudly elected their officers, who accepted the responsibility of overseeing the candy sale and the program for sponsoring a child in India. The program received the same catalytic enthusiasm that had roused team spirit weeks before with a Wolverine tag sale. These projects demonstrated the willingness of the sophomores to work as a class.

Fifteen meant a time for fads, foolishness, and fantasies. It was the age where a certain plateau was reached before the final shove to maturity began. The symptoms were childishness, a tendency toward wild giggling, and an almost fanatic adherence to fads. Fifteen was the age of optimism and idealism directed towards themselves and their world. Most of all, fifteen was dreaming.

Being fourteen meant changes. For some it meant noticing the girl who sat across from you in study hall, or it meant another year of avoiding the opposite sex. For boys, it was a time of clumsy feet, cracking voices, and catching up to girls in height. For girls, fourteen meant wearing makeup to school, piercing their ears, and going on their first date.

Being fourteen meant the last year of junior high. Grades became important to you at this age, and this caused worry. This was compounded by the fact that grades also worried parents. Freshmen began to get used to hearing things like "Don't bother calling your girlfriend tonight; you're not going anywhere until you study," or "I bet you're the only one who doesn't need to study." Chances are ninth grade was the first year that thoughts of the future materialized in a substantial shape, and speculations began concerning education after high school.

Being fourteen brought with it many new freedoms but also demanded the acceptance of new responsibilities. School activities suddenly opened up to you in the form of clubs, dances, and athletics; but this involved becoming more mature in budgeting the time and energies available to meet the hectic schedule. Most of all, fourteen was growing.

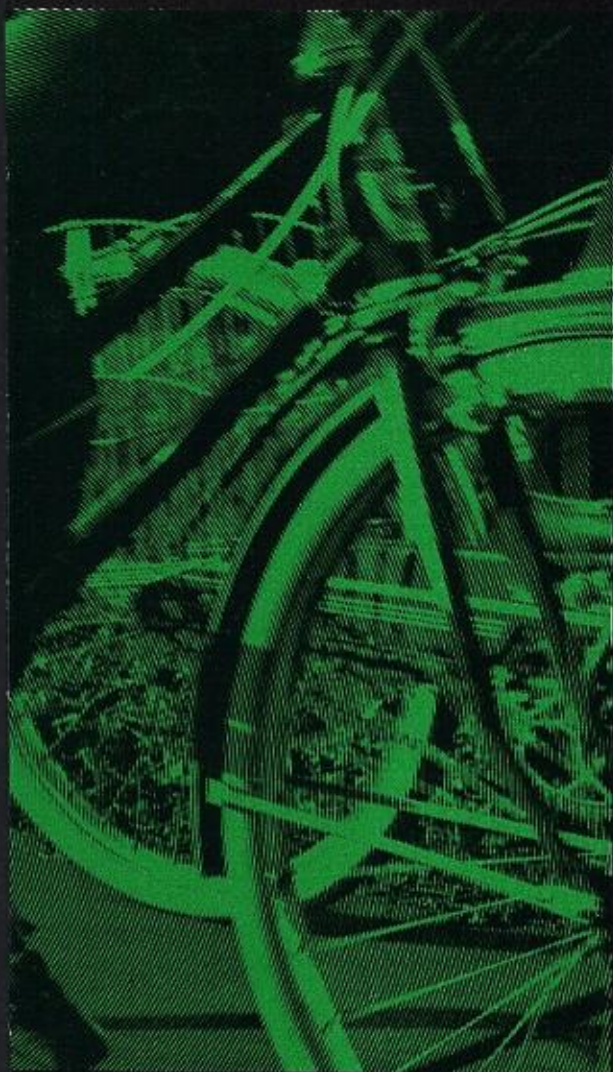

Freshmen display of school spirit at junior high pep rallies spurred their team to victory.

Aware that a pleasant atmosphere makes food taste better, Mrs. Esther Heinz, the new manager of the cafeteria, and her able staff decorated the serving area according to the holiday seasons. Attracting more students to eat in the cafeteria were the varied menus and the new separate serving line for a la carte meals.

Also maintaining a pleasant atmosphere was the maintenance crew. Mr. Wilbur Burrows and his staff worked around the clock to enable Lincoln to function smoothly. Students in the Neighborhood Youth Corps program eased the custodians' burdens by performing some of the lighter tasks after school. Through the efforts of the cafeteria and maintenance personnel, a high order of efficiency was upheld.

Monday blues and buck fever plagued Lincoln High.

Eileen Bamford, school nurse; Lois Richards, school nurse

After each weekend, the medical department faced an epidemic of the "Monday Blues." An onslaught of absentees used every excuse from headache and upset stomach to "Buck Fever." Using their modern facilities and their medical knowledge, the staff also treated more serious ailments, such as fainting, flu, and broken bones. Throughout the year, the school nurses tested vision and hearing and helped the school physician and dentist conduct examinations. They filed all vital health information on a permanent record for each student for future reference. Participation in a community-wide tetanus clinic occupied the medical staff this past summer and early fall. Although constantly harangued, the school nurses attended each patient's illness with precise care.

New techniques incorporated into

Included in the revised schedule for Mr. Oberfeiting's boys' health classes was a six week study of the Federal Self Help Program, a course in emergency preparedness. Miss Calhoun accelerated the girls' health and the physiology course to include the study of human anatomy and the reproductive system.

Giving the students a chance to exercise their body muscles was the task of the physical education classes. Sports and exercises utilized in gym classes aided in the development of each student's dexterity and muscle coordination. Also, frequent physical fitness tests informed these young athletes of their progress. While Mrs. Ansell, junior high girls' gym teacher, was away on sabbatical leave, substitutes capably instructed her classes. Because of their useful applications in everyday life, health and physical education were an important part of the curriculum.

From mud pies to apple pies and from erector sets to gun racks were some transformations generated through home economics and industrial arts. Home ec students worked in a newly remodeled department sewing the latest suits and mini-skirts while young "Julia Childs" prepared such tantalizing dishes as baked Alaska in cooking class. In the junior high home living course, future homemakers learned family responsibility.

Industrial arts courses provided an opportunity for boys to develop their creative talents. In wood shop they applied their talents to constructing gun racks, bookends, and other useful objects. Metal shop apprentices gained skill with metals, producing such objects as chisels, hammers, and metal molds. The mechanical drawing course introduced aspiring engineers and architects to the fundamentals of their future professions.

In Memoriam

I'd like to think when life is done
That I had filled a needed post,
That here and there I'd paid my fare
With more than idle talk and boast;
That I had taken gifts divine,
The breath of life and manhood fine,
And tried to use them now and then
In service for my fellow man.

I'd like to think that here and there,
When I am gone, there shall remain
A happier spot that might have not Existed had I toiled for gain;
That some one's cheery voice and smile
Shall prove that I had been worthwhile;
That I had paid with something fine
My debt to God for life divine.

Edgar A. Guest

Accuracy and responsibility stressed

Sophomore business students began their career to the tune of "Keep your eyes off the keys" in Typing I and "Two plus two does not equal five" in business math. In the junior year secretarial aspirants struggled with the more difficult book-keeping and typing. Under the Student Work Program nine senior girls enrolled in the advanced secretarial course, working for local businesses during their morning classes. During the first semester these girls took Shorthand II and transcriptions, office practice, and business English. Classroom and work experience gave commercial students a substantial foundation.

Knowing of the increased emphasis set upon science in today's world, science teachers launched the ninth graders into the rudiments of chemistry and physics. Biology students gathered leaves and dissected earthworms and frogs. Physics students applied themselves to studies and experiments in light, motion, and electricity. Mr. Kirklin's chemistry classes learned their lessons with touches of humor as they used banana splits, kool-aid, and tutti-frutti ice cream analogies in their study of mixtures and compounds. An accelerated science program was continued for the third year to meet the needs of those students who have outstanding ability and interest in science. Students not wishing one of three major sciences elected practical science or practical chemistry.

Along with imaginary numbers, accelerated students were introduced to new uses of numbers: Permutations to arrange numbers, probability to predict the next card, and limits to express infinity. Algebra III pupils delved into concepts of analytic geometry, which included the quadratic systems. Trig pupils used formal and indirect geometry proofs and circular functions sin, cos, and tan to solve problems. Algebra II pupils worked with quadratic equations, while Algebra I pupils worked with sets and solved linear equations. "To enlighten the student's artistic outlook," noted Mr. Panico, the art teacher, "is the main objective of art class." Various techniques were used to accomplish this end. Students grappled with oils, pastels, charcoals, and inks in an effort to create. To prepare for a possible occupation in art, they worked on designs, advertisements, printing, silkscreens, and etchings. Besides sketching the usual still life objects of jugs, flowers, and fruits, advanced art students painted live models. When warm weather arrived, students spread throughout the school property trying to capture a small town's beauty on canvas. No form of art was suppressed: abstract, pop-art, op-art, or conventional. The art class was liberal, the art students were enthusiastic, and the creations were exciting.

Aesthetic appetites whetted by art

Concerts throughout the year by the Lincoln choirs and bands gave students an opportunity to demonstrate their musical talents. Expounding the qualities necessary for a good singer, the senior high choirs presented their programs with a new enthusiasm under Mr. Paul Gehm's direction. Mrs. Patricia Newton, taking the place of Mrs. Evelyn Backstrom, trained both the mind and the voice of the junior high with the fundamentals of music theory.

Under the direction of Mr. Fred Perino, the newly-formed junior high band provided entertainment and trained junior high students in instrumental music. The high quality performances of Mr. William Croissant's senior high band increased the spirit of the student body at football games and pep rallies.

Specialized courses cultivated independent skills.

Enriching the basics of reading, math, and English with plays and townhouse discussions was the purpose of the special education class. This course gave special emphasis to the occupational side of learning. "Our aim is to prepare the student for the world of work," stated Mr. Gatto, senior high special education teacher.

Another course emphasizing special education in a particular subject was driver's education. With only two instructors to teach the many students, the in-class training was held in the auditorium. Students were made aware of safety regulations with the aid of movies and actual driving experiences during and after school.

Mock elections, current periodicals, and freewheeling class discussions sparked social studies classrooms. Ninth grade students studied the responsibilities of the democratic system. World culture students explored the major episodes of history in order to trace the development of civilization. Material covering everything from the colonial days to the present civil rights movement was included in the study of American history. The study of our national government, constitution, and lawmaking functions was a vital part of the American government course. Sociology and psychology students gained some new insights into man's relationship with man and society.

Mr. Whitman and Mr. Schwenk augmented German I, a course offered for the first time this year, with first-hand accounts of Germany. This, along with tapes and grammar study, brightened the year for the German I students. French I classes studied grammar, while French II students gave prepared speeches and began reading novels. Third and fourth year French students participated in skits and read more difficult passages. Advanced Spanish students improved their vocabulary with prepared and impromptu speeches, poetry and novel reading, and skits. They also gained knowledge of Spanish culture through the study of the fine arts of Spain and Mexico. First and second year Latin students learned general vocabulary and translation skills, while third and fourth year students studied Virgil. The study of languages widened the scope of the students' intellect and their ability to communicate.

Improvement of reading abilities was the goal of the STAR program under the direction of Miss Giovannini. This program enrolled forty students whose school problems could be traced to a below average reading comprehension. Special reading equipment such as shadowscopes, tach X, and tape recorders, besides programmed materials and a small library, provided ample tools to pursue the goals of the program. Also involved in the program were 28 college preparatory students who were interested in increased reading speeds.

The Speech Correction Department, under the capable supervision of Mr. William Brady, continued its valuable services at Lincoln.

Student participation encouraged

King Arthur and Sir Thomas More helped English teachers enrich and enliven their classes. Taking advantage of various media, sophomores traveled to see Camelot on the wide screen and a live performance of A Man For All Seasons at the Bagpiper Theatre at Geneva College. Juniors dramatized original parodies of Hamlet and labored over research papers. By viewing films of well-known plays, seniors became familiar with world classics. Student attempts in drama and composition met the critical eye of the teachers, while short stories, critiques, and expository and argumentative essays fell under the red pencil of influential lay readers.

Library matured to versatile IMC.

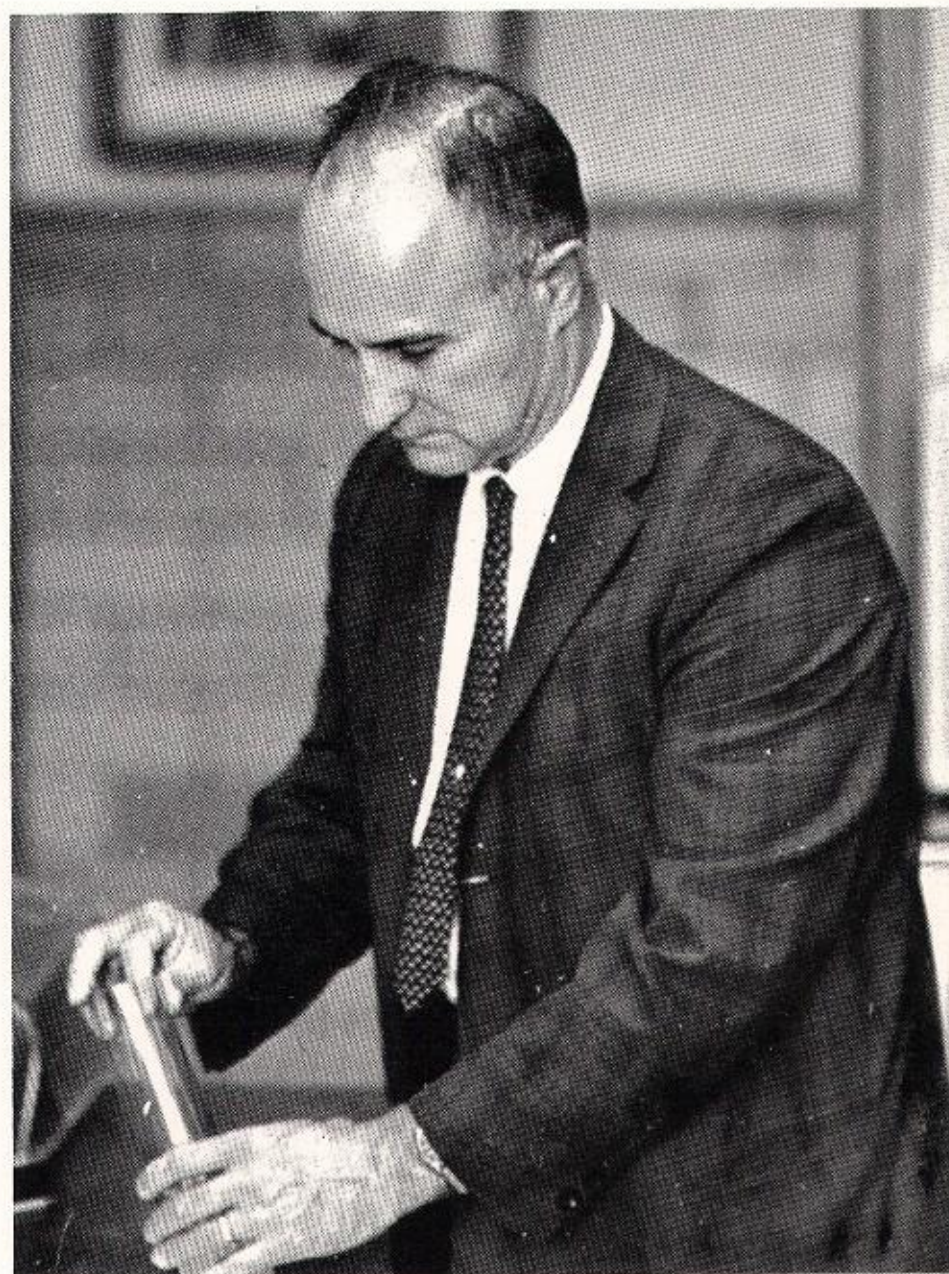

Newly transformed from a library to a more versatile Instructional Materials Center, the three rooms filled with books, tape recorders, microfilms, and other innovations served the teachers and students. More shelves, microfilm readers, and updated reference materials were new aids to readers and researchers. Adjoining the library and included in the IMC was the audio-visual department, which made available material ranging from language records to math transparencies. Freed from clerical duties through the use of teachers' aids, the IMC staff, Mr. Boyd, Mr. Bodensky, and Mrs. Mizik, acquired more time to work individually with students not only during the day but two nights a week as well.

Counselors helped students with future plans.

Assisting students to prepare for the future were the four Lincoln guidance counselors. Junior high students, capably handled by Mr. William Spellman and Miss Letha Baringer, searched for the right vocation from the wide variety of fields open to them. With Mr. Ralph Newton's guidance, sophomores began to make definite plans for their life's work. Miss LaRue Craig immeasurably aided juniors and seniors with advice and understanding in their ceaseless quest for occupations and education.

Versatile secretaries assumed various roles.

Screening pranks from legitimate complaints and answering inquiries of curious spectators are some of the many duties set upon the secretaries. A common work day might include some fifty telephone conversations with upset parents, anxious salesmen, and administrators of other schools. Filing hundreds of letters and checking the attendance of thousands of students are routine events for the various secretaries. Office secretaries are the link between the administration and the student body. They have the responsibility of directing the students and faculty to the correct administrative person in charge. Today's high school secretary is not only an expert in shorthand and typing, but is also a diplomat, interpreter, and child psychologist.

Concerns of students became obligations of principals.

Arthur Taggart—Principal

"It's the principals' responsibility to improve the instruction in all areas of education," stated Mr. Taggart, school principal. Though burdened by a great amount of detail work, Mr. Taggart still managed to fulfill his obligations to the students, faculty, and public.

Supporting Mr. Taggart in his seventh year as principal were assistants Mr. Magnifico and Mr. Hennon. Relieving Mr. Wallace, who prepared a long-range developmental survey prior to a sabbatical leave, Mr. Magnifico's functions included enforcement of school rules and disciplining of the students. Mr. Hennon served as Director of Activities at Lincoln. This involved general supervision of club activities and sponsoring of Club Council.

L. Butler Hennon—Assistant Principal

Dominick Magnifico—Acting Assistant Principal

Moderate changes set for Lincoln.

"Meeting the challenge of change" was the objective of the supervisors and their staff. Encountering this challenge was superintendent of the schools, Dr. Clarence M. Long. He had the job of general supervision of Lincoln and nine elementary schools. This awe-inspiring task also included budgeting and policy setting for the various schools.

Another man set for change was Mr. Charles Barnhart, director of instruction, whose job was to co-ordinate education programs and direct classroom instruction. Along with his job of purchasing school supplies, he also was instrumental in bringing the new German course to Lincoln.

Administrators set school policies.

With new laws and policies the School Board kept the Ellwood Area Schools and the new Vocational Technical High School in good order. Their duties included keeping adequate supplies in the schools, arranging satisfactory bus transportation, handling athletic events, and selecting new teachers and setting their salaries. Major decisions were made to increase the length of class periods in the school day and add new courses to the curriculum, including German. The Board also approved an eleven o'clock curfew for all extra curricular activities at the high school.

The senior,
soon to emerge
into an adult world, has begun to develop an individualistic spectrum—
a spectrum
of his own special skills.
As a senior,
he is a leader
of Lincoln.
With commencement,
he must begin again
to prove himself.
Some seniors diffuse
into the world immediately.
Others further their education to fully mature their talents.
Just as the spectrum combines,
so do the colors of the senior
into the white light of adulthood.

The discovery,
the development
of inborn skills
and talents—
Lincoln
is a kaleidoscope
of activities.
The kaleidoscope
mirrors
laughter, seriousness.
It is a color—
the image
of activities.

Music is spectrum.

Graduating from childhood,
 underclassmen
 developed into a spectrum of youth, life.
 Exploding with vitality,
 underclassmen
 hesitantly explored, enthusiastically searched
 for greater knowledge.
 As they discovered themselves
 as individuals,
 underclassmen sought their light
 in this complex world.

Through the multiplicity
of media and courses,
the faculty
encouraged communication between the awkward
and the experienced.
Their diversity
demonstrated to the student
". . . . the importance of a balanced life."
With their expanding spectrum,
the faculty
worked to lighten
the world
of their students.
